DAFKNISS STOPS GREAT TOURNAMENT

FOURTH SET WILL BE PLAYED THIS AFTERNOON

Cunha and Warren Take First Set, But Lose to Roth and Cooke in Next Two—Today's Play Will Decide the Championship

Today's play will decide the doubles tennis championship of the Territory. With three sets played and eight games of the final set disposed of, falling light stopped the tournament last night and made a postponement necessary. Cooke and Roth are in the lead, having won two out of three sets yesterday afternoon. The score in games in the last set stood 5-3 in their favor when time was called.

Under the terms of the agreement, made before the tournament commenced, the entire fourth set will be played over again today. It was decided by both parties that, should darkness interfere, any unfinished part of a set should be disregarded on the next day.

The play yesterday was excellent, and it developed many surprises. The first set was won by Cunha and Warren, their score being 6-4. Roth and Cooke then turned the tables, and took the second and third sets, the scores in both instances being 6-4 also.

The fourth set started off with a rush. Roth and Cooke seemed to have everything their way, and the championship was apparently within their grasp. The first five games they took, and only one stood between them and the coveted trophy.

Cunha and Warren then took a new lease of life and started doing some wonderful things. Three straight games they smashed out, and they seemed likely to keep up the work. It was rapidly growing dark, however, so at the end of the eighth game, time was called.

At 3:30 o'clock this afternoon the contestants will meet again on the Pacific courts and fight out the last set.

HIGH HANDED COURTS.

Men follow with newspaper, angry. It's a crying shame the way those high courts pay no attention whatever to the wishes of the people! Such high-handed proceedings I never heard tell of!

Mr. Gale—What's the trouble now, dear?

Mrs. Gale—Why, in that Fassett divorce case the court decided the names of the co-respondents should not be made public!

MATTER OF DUTY.

Shopper—What makes those goods so expensive?

Clerk—The duty, ma'am.

Shopper—Oh, then they are imported?

Clerk—No, they are domestic goods. But the proprietor thinks it his duty to increase his bank balance.

THE DYSPEPSIA LINE.

This going down to Turkeytown is well enough.

But coming back we find the track a trifle rough.

CONGRESSMEN MAY COME HERE AGAIN

Frear Says in Report Hawaii May Invite Them in 1909

"ADMIRAL" ALMY AND HIS WORK AT HONOLULU'S PORT

Many Matters of Extreme Importance to Territory Are Set Out in Governor Frear's Report to President

In his summary of general conditions in the Territory for the year ended June 30, 1908, Governor Frear speaks as follows in his annual report:

"The two-weeks visit of the Secretary of the Interior, near the close of the fiscal year, during which he toured the four principal islands, was greatly appreciated by the people of Hawaii. Besides its many direct benefits, it inspired them with new confidence that Hawaiian affairs would be looked after by the department with interest and intelligence.

"The year before the Territory was visited by the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, and, as guests of the Territory, twenty-eight members of Congress. Provision may be made by the next Legislature for a similar visit of congressmen in 1909.

"Much attention has been given to questions of population, labor and immigration. Japanese immigration has been much reduced through the action of the Japanese government. The sentiment in favor of laborers who are or will become citizens of the United States has grown. The Board of Immigration has assisted the return of many Europeans who had come from Hawaii to California and has taken steps to obtain immigrants from the mainland with New York as the center of operations. Labor has not been as scarce as was anticipated from the decrease in Japanese immigration.

This is due to the restrictions upon the emigration of Japanese from these islands to the mainland and to additional inducements made for them to remain here as laborers on the plantations. Planters and others exhibit a constantly increasing disposition not only to cooperate with the government in the introduction of persons of the Latin and Anglo-Saxon races and the settlement of public lands by such persons, but also to devote their own lands to the same purpose."

"Admiral" Almy's work was dwelt on by Governor Frear in his report to the President. The Governor says as follows under the heading of "Shipping Service":

"The work of the shipping commissioner in this Territory is changing with the rapid substitution of steam for sailing vessels.

"During the past two years the so-called 'crimps,' previously so troublesome, have been eliminated; no blood money is now paid for seamen. Boarding house keepers of doubtful character have largely been driven from business and saloon-keepers cooperate in refraining from selling liquor to intoxicated seamen.

"The port of Honolulu is known as a trouble port. Seamen are usually shipped and discharged at other ports, and the work of the commissioner is largely judicial—the settlement of disputes. Commissioners elsewhere do work that yields fees, while the work of the commissioner here is largely of the other kind. It would seem that he should be paid a salary instead of fees."

NOW THEY DON'T SPEAK

They stood at the hot-chocolate counter. "You should have seen that handsome policeman help me over the crowded street this morning," boasted the one with the blue plumes. "I did," responded her jealous rival. "Well, it is not every one that can receive so much attention from a handsome policeman while crossing the street." "No, indeed. And you should have heard what he said after you were safely over." "Ah, a pretty compliment, I'll wager?" "No, he said he gave you just as much attention as if you had been young and good-looking." And then the polar atmosphere that drifted between them almost congealed the steaming chocolates.
